Story of the Old Bell

Reprint by Request—1921 Program.

A FRIEND

One beautiful night when the stars were twinkling in the blue canopy above the bluffs and the soft light of the moon came sifting through the leafy trees, I was strolling by the auditorium, near which a whip-poor-will was trying to give out his sweetest song. I heard a faint voice. It seemed to come from the direction of the bell and it said: "Won't you listen to my story; it is very interesting, although no one ever seems to think of me." I dropped down upon the steps and this is what the old bell told me: "Many years ago, in 1883, I think, a company of good people gathered in this valley to hold a camp meeting. The year before they met in the next valley beyond, but decided to change locations on account of the wonderful spring here, never ceasing to bubble forth its pure crystal water.

"The ground was cleared and a large tent erected seating about one thousand. I can't remember just where I came from, but I was suspended in a rustic frame, about four feet high in front of the tent and they pulled my arm to make me ring. My tones were measured and solemn, for the call was to come and worship God. The people came from far and near, in wagons, buggies and carts. The hills resounded with gospel songs, praises and prayers of thanksgiving and supplication.

"One time the tent blew down during a storm, causing much confusion and almost disaster. The next year the tent failed to come and an auditorium was hastily built, the men starting to cut the timber by day-break. The hammers made a merry song and the structure was soon completed. Then I was elevated to my present position and I have been faithful to my trust, pealing forth my tones as best I could.

"Good old Father Hallock, Revs. Scarritt and Van Treese, Mr. McAdams and others decided to organize a Chautauqua institution similar to the Mother Chautauqua in New York, thereby giving the tent dwellers intellectual as well as spiritual food. So for nearly forty years I have called the people together to hear many noted divines, among them DeWitt Talmadge, Sam Jones, Sam Small; great orators, such as William Jennings Bryan, Richmond Pearson Hobson and John B. Goff; lecturers, Col. Bain, Lou J. Beauchamp; musicians, Doubt Family, Libby and McNeil, Hruby Brothers, Dixie Jubilee Singers, Hawaiians, and Roney's Boys; entertainers, Ross Crane, Jeanette Kling, Chas. Taggart, Germaine, Packard and Laurant, and last, but not least, our own Chautauqua talent, in which the 'kiddies' play no small part, for they can do anything and everything under the sun.

"Years ago on 'big days' the crowd didn't wait for me to ring, 'come on, come on!' They gathered before dinner so to get 'good seats' to hear Sam Jones call them 'lop-eared hounds and sinners.' Yes, and the yellow jackets came, too, to get their share of the jellies, jam, cake and pie. Not everyone understands how to pull the wire on my arm to bring forth my most melodious tones, for sometimes I have been most jerked off my bracket, and nobody can do well when jerked any old way. Once some boys were playing pranks and pulled the wire. Gracious! how it startled me, aroused the sleepers and they exclaimed: 'I wonder what's the matter!' One year I had to sound the 'curfew,' also the 'noon hour,' so the croquet players would know when 'dinner is ready.'

"The wildest and most frantic efforts were made to get me to ring faster to tell the terrible tragedy, 'The Inn is burning!' Soon a 'fire brigade' was formed to battle against the wicked flames. Last year I was rung by the 'ladies fair,' each one anxious to have a part in the proclamation of the 'glorious news' that the 'Susan B. Anthony Amendment' had been ratified and signed by the President.

"My tones have always been for joy, although some of the 'faithful Chautauquans' have been called to the 'great beyond,' but I mourned their passing in silence.

"From my elevated position I have watched the tented city, superintended by Col. Rodgers, gradually transformed to keep abreast with the times, and the many beautiful and artistic cottages with modern conveniences would bring joy to the heart, were some of the early settlers to revisit the 'old camp ground.'

"I think I remember now of being relieved of my duties as dinner bell on the Moss farm, he having donated me to this beautiful spot for a noble cause.

"Henry is to be my official master this season, and the 'kiddies' think it an especial honor if they can 'please, ring the bell.'

"The L. C. I. A. are so progressive, I hope they won't say I am too old-fashioned and assign me to the river bottom, for from year to year, through sunshine and rain, I will stand faithful to my task, ringing out ever the same: 'Come, come, come one, come all; both great and small.'"

New Piasa Chautauqua

Nature's Ideal Play Grounds

The 1938 season at Chautauqua will begin Saturday, June 25th, which date will mark the beginning of the fifty-third annual assembly. A most cordial invitation is extended to the numberless hosts of former friends who for so many years have found health, strength, entertainment and education in this most beautiful spot.

The charm of Chautauqua is its beautiful scenery. Here one finds at every turn beauty to satisfy the eye and mind. Restful, peaceful—away from the city's busy throngs—a veritable "Peaceful Valley" where business and other worries do not enter.

Chautauqua's principal attractions are fresh air, pure spring water, cool nights, beautiful scenery, ample hotel and cottage accommodations and a program consisting of a series of lectures, moving pictures and athletic events so arranged to be instructive and entertaining to everyone.

Some new and attractive feature is provided each season and this year will mark the advent of water sports and boating on the broad expanse of the newly created lake bordering the Chautauqua shore line.

Special entertainment and athletic events are arranged for each week end and the traditional Sunday services under the leadership of Chautauqua's Dean of Religious Work, M. Edwin Johnson, and eminent ministers of the leading churches offer an opportunity for a most enjoyable vacation.

Kindergarten

Children visiting Chautauqua will find an excellent kindergarten well equipped and under competent leadership.

Music

Mrs. Clare Ditto has been engaged as accompanist for the 1938 season. Her pleasing personality and work of instruction in the Wood River schools gives assurance that special music each Sunday service and during the week will be taken care of efficiently.

Mr. Carrol Peters and his superb dance orchestra of Alton will delight the many visitors to Chautauqua each Saturday evening at the regular weekly dance, under the direction of the L. C. I. A.

Piasaqua Nature Club

Mrs. M. Edwin Johnson, Director

This club was formed to study bird and plant life and other phases of nature. To further a greater love and appreciation of the beauties of nature. To understand the economic value of natural resources and assist in their conservation.
